LINGLE MURDERER IS CAUGHT; WITNESSES IDENTIFY PRISONER

Capture Ends Long Search For Slayer Of Reporter

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Bringing seven months of intensive investigation to a dramatic climax, State's Attorney John A. Swanson today led a nattily-dressed college-boy type of youth before an assemblage of newspapermen and named him as the man who shot and killed Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter who turned racketeer.

"This is the man who killed 'Jake' Lingle," said Chief Investigator Pat Roche. "We will ask his indictment for Lingle's murder."

The prisoner's name was given as Leo Brothers, alias Louis Bader, reputed gunman and terrorist of St. Louis. Although he appeared to be but 24 years old his age is 32.

Brothers has been identified by several who witnessed Lingle's murder by a lone assassin in the Randolph St. pedestrian subway last June 9, Prosecutor Swanson said.

Investigation has disclosed that Lingle was put on the "spot" by a killer hired by gambling interests whom the reporter had either double-crossed or harassed through excessive protection levies. The $65-a-week police reporter had an annual income of at least $65,000 and had come to be known as Chicago's "unofficial police chief" through his asserted power to protect or persecute the various underworld organizations.

It was on a tip from one of Alphonse Capone's trusted lieutenants that Brothers' name was given authorities as the killer of Lingle, according to underworld reports. Lingle was known to be an intimate friend of the gang overlord.

Brothers was seized in his south side apartment hideout December 21 and kept incommunicado in a downtown hotel while detectives and members of the board of strategy named to question the reporter's murder solved him day and night.

Throughout the grilling the suspect has refused to admit any knowledge of the reporter's death. He has admitted committing two robberies in St. Louis, according to Roche. He also admitted that he is wanted in St. Louis for the murder of John De Blazio, a taxi-cab driver, in July of 1929. He then fled to Chicago where he has been since, he told police.

Authorities were able to give out nothing definite as to a possible motive their prisoner might have had in the Lingle assassination. Brothers, since his flight from St. Louis, has held himself open to engagements as a gunman mercenary, according to Roche.

When he appeared at the early morning showup today the suspect willingly posed for photographs, but maintained a close silence that could not be called sullen.

MAN MURDERS WIFE, KILLS PASSER-BY

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 8.—A stray bullet from a revolver, used in a murder, today claimed the life of a passer-by near the scene of the killing.

The victim was Edward J. Spindel, 32-year-old insurance salesman, who was shot as he turned from the sidewalk into the entrance of an apartment building in Walnut Hills.

Police said the stray bullet was fired from a gun in the hands of a Negro, 35, jealous-crazed Negro of Lockland, O., who allegedly murdered his estranged wife, Eva Mae Sanders, when she spurned a proffered reconciliation. Sanders was held for investigation pending the filing of charges against him.

FRIENDS WILL BURY FORMER FILM STAR

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 8.—Instead of a pauper's grave in Mexico the remains of Art Acord, once a leading cowboy screen star, will be brought back to Hollywood for burial. Acord committed suicide in Chihuahua last week.

His burial here was assured today when friends arranged to send $400 to Juarez, Mex., that the body might be brought to the border at El Paso, Tex.

Interment in the Mexican "potter's field" was halted by a wire from Senator Hiram Johnson to the American Consul at Juarez, sent at the request of various film personages here.

RELIGIOUS MURDER

A bitter argument over religion and liquor led to the slaying of Frank Johnson, 31, Los Angeles agnostic, by his father-in-law Jas. T. Bentley, above, police say. Mrs. Johnson, daughter of Rose Bentley, evangelist and ordained pastor of Aimee Temple, since her marriage, had been influenced by the religious views of her husband, her father believed. While Mrs. Bentley looked on and Mrs. Johnson, an expectant mother, screamed, Bentley killed his son-in-law, police declared.

DIVORCE ATTACKED IN PAPAL WARNING; SEES GROWING VICE

Encyclical Reaffirms Fundamental Laws On Marriage

ROME, Jan. 8.—A stern warning to the Christian world to take heed of its mad pace and turn back into the paths of divine law was pronounced today by Pope Pius XI in his eagerly awaited encyclical on marriage.

The document, explaining with evident regret that since even among the faithful pernicious mistakes were being made and "depraved and perverted customs acquired," the Vatican deemed it necessary to raise its voice to warn its flocks away from these poisonous pastures.

The encyclical in its entirety harks back to the fundamental marriage law elaborately put forth in the encyclical of Leo XIII which refutes divorce and excommunicates those who by contumacious within the married state can families be limited without transgressing the divine law.

Pope Pius XI's encyclical is in three parts, the indissolubility of divine marriage is affirmed in the first part; the second deals with crimes against Christian marriages, and the third is devoted largely to a remedy of the defects as viewed by the pontiff.

Referring in no uncertain terms that marriage was instituted by God as indissoluble, the document issued by his holiness said:

"Christ having said 'whoever repudiates his wife and takes another commits adultery,' just so those who take a woman repudiated by her husband also commit adultery. Whoever God has united, man cannot separate. Once wedded, one remains wedded for life."

The conception that marriage can be dissolved through legal methods or otherwise was sharply opposed and denounced by the pope, who deplored the fact that people seem willing not only to tolerate divorce but also to ratify it by law.

"Divorce is fatal for nature," he declared in his encyclical, "it opens new avenues of corruption in parliamentary and public life."

The effect of the stage, motion picture, modern literature and radio broadcasts on the divine institution of marriage caused the pontiff "serious concern," he said that these public means of entertainment regularly offend marital principles even to the extent of praising divorce and excusing vice.

Continuing into the second part of the encyclical, the pope bitterly attacked modern marital theories, caustically observing that "some people have even gone so far as to invent new forms of a temporary union, called 'companionate marriage,' which is nothing less than free love."

FIVE KILLED IN PLANE COLLISION

REVEAL TRAGEDY AS ITALIAN SQUADRON STARTED OCEAN HOP

Planes Crashed In Sea At Take-Off Report Shows

ROME, Jan. 8.—The Italian government revealed today that five aviators were killed and three seriously injured in the crash of two of the twelve transatlantic seaplanes which started from Bolama in Portuguese Guinea for South America Tuesday, under command of General Italo Balbo.

The official report on the tragedy, of which there had been rumors since yesterday, was given out forty-eight hours after the accident in order to soften the blow to the Italian people, who gave themselves over to unbounded rejoicing when ten of the machines spanned the hazardous 1,860 miles to Natal, Brazil in seventeen hours and fifteen minutes.

According to the government's account of the tragedy, twelve double-pontoon seaplanes lined up in four squadrons of three machines each for their start under a full moon, heavily loaded with gasoline and carrying four men each.

Five minutes after the second plane of the white squadron commanded by Captain Luigi Boer lifted into the air to follow the black, red and green units, his machine suddenly dived, plunged into the water at terrific speed and burst into flames. All occupants were killed and the ship was turned into a wreck.

The third plane of the red squadron, commanded by Captain Recagno, rose only 100 feet into the air before mishap brought it back upon the water with a terrific splash. The plane's mechanic, riding on the right pontoon, was instantly killed and the three occupants were injured.

Two supply ships which had accompanied the air flotilla from its starting point at Orbetello, Italy, were immediately ordered prepared for replacement of the wrecked pair and one hour later soared away to catch up with the rest of the main group.

The replacement ships succeeded

PAIR INDICTED FOR OHIO TORCH MURDER

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 8.—Two Pittsburgh men—Louis Zambrano, 29, and John Alberti—were indicted today by the Wetzel County grand jury for the "torch" murder of Vito Ascoli.

Ascoli's charred body was found lying in a field near Pine Grove last November. It was not identified for several weeks, being burned almost beyond recognition.

County authorities said that Ascoli was shot through the head several times, his body saturated with gasoline and set afire.

Survivors were transferred to the steamer Porthos, now enroute to Singapore. The Tricolor was enroute from Oslo, Norway, to Manila.

UNEMPLOYED ST AGE PEACEFUL DEMONSTRATION IN IRONTON

IRONTON, O., Jan. 8.—Pointing out that the recent community chest fund with a goal of $10,000 resulted in a subscription of only $8,000 city officials said today that additional relief for Ironton's large army of unemployed could not be given immediately.

More than 500 unemployed persons staged a peaceful demonstration late yesterday afternoon for the purpose of calling to the attention of city officials the "true situation in Ironton."

The group gathered in a park on the outskirts of the city and paraded through downtown streets to the city hall where their spokesman asked the city author-

LITA GREY CHAPLIN, GEORGES CARPENTIER, BANDIT VICTIMS

Former Actress And Ex-Boxer Kidnaped And Robbed

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—"I don't know, I tell you! I don't know! There were four of them. They said they'd 'put me on the spot' if I talked. I don't want to sign a complaint. Twenty-five thousand dollars—what's that? My life is worth more to me than that!"

Thus, hysterical, Lita Grey Chaplin, divorced wife of Charlie Chaplin, world-famous picture star, met police at the door of her hotel suite here today after being held up, kidnaped in her own town car, and robbed of jewelry valued at $25,000.

Kidnaped with her was Georges Carpentier, one-time contender for the world's heavyweight championship.

The kidnaping took place in sight of nearly 100 men, women and boys who had gathered to see Mrs. Chaplin and Carpentier leave the theater, where Mrs. Chaplin has been appearing in vaudeville for the past week.

Mrs. Chaplin and Carpentier emerged from the stage door of the theater, arm in arm. Mrs. Chaplin's town car, was waiting at the curb, with Albert Frank, the chauffeur, at the wheel.

Carpentier handed Mrs. Chaplin into the tonneau of the machine, and then followed her, seating himself beside her. As he did so, the four bandits appeared suddenly, one at each door of the car, front and rear.

The bandits drove the car about a mile distant and after robbing Mrs. Chaplin, forced the actress,

WOMAN MYSTERIOUSLY MURDERED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—A new twist was given to the mystery garroting of an attractive woman in a West Side apartment today when it was revealed that the strangler's victim was Miss Margaret Jean Stevens, 30.

The murdered woman was first thought to be Mrs. George Neilsen, wife of a foundry foreman. Neilsen, taken into custody later in Crown Point, Ind., informed the police the woman was not his wife, but Miss Stevens, with whom he shared the apartment.

Neilsen broke down and wept at news of the killing and said he was engaged to marry Miss Stevens.

The slayer twisted a towel about the woman's throat, drawing it tight and knotting it. A pillow had been thrown over her face.

Barking of a pet dog brought agents to the apartment last night and police were summoned.

One of the woman's arms was bruised, but there was no other evidence of violence. She had been dead for at least twenty-four hours physicians estimated.

In the hallway outside the apartment police found a hyodermic needle, presumably dropped by the killer in his flight.

BANDITS GET $40,000 IN GEMS IN COLUMBUS; LOCK CLERK IN VAULT

Employee Kidnaped, Forced To Open Up Jewelry Store

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 8.—Theft of $40,000 in gems from the Kay Jewelry Store here and the kidnaping of one of the store's clerks was discovered today when the wife of the kidnaped clerk became frightened at her husband's absence and informed the store manager and police.

Sam Meisner, manager, went to the store which is located in the heart of the downtown district where he found Ed Orlander, 26, handcuffed inside the company's vault in the rear of the store. He had been held captive in the huge vault for more than eight hours.

Orlander was the last employee to leave the store Wednesday evening. As he was walking up an alley in the rear of his home, three bandits held him up, forced him into their automobile, drove to the store and compelled him to unlock the rear door.

The three gunmen then commanded the clerk to open the vault where the most costly jewelry had been stored for the night. They filled several large bags they brought with them with diamonds, watches, rings and other valuables.

They were unable to get all the gems into the bags, so one of the robbers went to the basement of the store brought up several large pasteboard boxes and the remainder of the robbery was placed in them.

When the robbery was completed, the bandits handcuffed Orlander to a steel pole inside the vault and escaped.

Orlander furnished authorities with descriptions of his attackers and also gave them several clues as to their identity. Local police and county officials spread a dragnet about this district in an effort to apprehend the trio.

They said that more than 300 families in the city, with a population of 16,000, were destitute and facing starvation.

No violence of any sort was attempted during the demonstration.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Communists have made plans for several demonstrations and so-called "hunger marches" in New York today. Police prepared to end the demonstrations sharply.

"Free food" was to be demanded by the marchers, according to an official of the Communists.

At a demonstration of Reds yesterday in Newark, seven men and six women were arrested.

HOME NURSE FEARED FATALLY HURT WHEN CAR IS DEMOLISHED

Miss Helen Sample, 23, Victim; Ernest Haynes, Driver, Is Hurt

Miss Helen H. Sample, 23, Kokomo, Ind., night nurse at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, was injured perhaps fatally, when a taxicab in which she was a passenger crashed into the side of the locomotive of a Pennsylvania passenger train on S. Detroit St., near Third St., about 6:25 o'clock Wednesday night.

She was removed to Espey Hospital, where an examination by Dr. Marshall Best, disclosed she suffered a skull fracture, fractures of both hips and numerous cuts and bruises. Her condition remained about the same Thursday morning although little hope is held for her recovery.

Ernest Haynes, about 35, colored, 224 Fair St., driver of the taxicab, was crushed against the steering wheel and suffered three rib fractures, but after being treated at Espey Hospital was taken home.

Miss Sample, who was a member of the graduating class of Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, last May, had made a trip to Dayton Thursday for the purpose of visiting members of her graduating class and returned to Xenia by train arriving shortly after 6 p. m., too late to make connections with a bus for the Home.

As she was supposed to go on duty at the hospital at the institution at 7 o'clock, Miss Sample called the taxi.

The driver was traveling south on Detroit St. and the train was just pulling out for Springfield when the collision occurred at a point in front of The Espey Co. where the crossing is diagonal.

The sedan crashed into the locomotive near the steps leading to the cab. The auto, badly wrecked, was dragged twenty feet before the train was stopped.

Investigation by Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, who arrived at the scene almost immediately, indicated the train was traveling slowly at the time.

Haynes is said to have declared he was driving at a normal rate of speed but that just before the accident happened everything "suddenly went black before his eyes."

Miss Sample, who was in the rear seat, was not thrown out of the car and the driver was pinned behind the steering wheel.

Miss Sample, whose parents live in Kokomo, Ind., has been employed at the Home for the last two months as night nurse at the hospital.

William P. Fox, N. West St., was engineer on the locomotive.

MILLION PEOPLE SEE JOFFRE RITES

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Beneath the golden dome of Les Invalides, a few steps away from others whose names glitter in military history, rests today Marshal Joseph Joffre, buried amidst national honors yesterday.

The coffin was placed in a temporary vault, there to remain for some months until taken to Levallois-Perret for interment in the Joffre Garden. Within viewing distance in the same chapel may be seen the circular Napoleonic tomb, and that of Marshal Foch is not far away.

It was conservatively estimated that 1,000,000 people braved the wintry streets to doff their hats in farewell to "Papa" Joffre, who died in his 79th year.

FIRE EXPERTS MAY HALT BLAZING MINE

ZANESVILLE, O., Jan. 8.—Officials from the state fire marshal's office arrived here today to confer with county commissioners and gas and oil company officials for the purpose of proposing a means of combating a mine fire which has been raging in the Cannelville district since December 25.

Steamshovels have been loaned by the state for use in an effort to "dig out" the fire.

Thousands of acres are threatened with destruction by the blaze which cannot be fought from within the mines because of the intense heat.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

ZANESVILLE, O., Jan. 8.—The first "first robin" story of 1931 came today from Mrs. Bert Todd who said she sighted a whole flock of them searching for food near her home here.

TWO GREENE COUNTY WOMEN HAD POEMS IN SAME MAGAZINE

The January issue of "The Parish Visitor," an illustrated magazine published in New York City, contained poems written by two Greene County women, Mrs. Willis McDorman, Jamestown and her niece, Mrs. E. A. Allen, Cedarville. Mrs. McDorman, who writes under the name of Lena Pearson McDorman, contributed a poem, "The Blind Girl" to this month's issue. For several years she has been vice president of the International Writers League and as a critic for poetry and prose receives communications from all parts of the world. One of her poems was recently published in the "Anthology of England" which appeared in London.

On the title page of the January issue is a poem by Mrs. Allen, also known as Grace Boteler Allen. Mrs. Allen secured material for her stories and poems while traveling as a state school examiner. She was the author of six stories and three poems appearing in December magazines. She was a former correspondent for the Gazette.

Former Frigidaire Employee Says Arvo Helped Him Coughing Almost Gone—Sore Lungs Better

One of the best things about Arvo is that it does so much good in cases where no relief had been obtained before. Daily we are hearing from people here in Xenia and its vicinity who have tried this wonderful remedy and have found to their great joy that it has helped them immensely.

Mr. J. D. Mitchell, of 227 North Clair St., Dayton, writes to tell us that Arvo helped to break his cough and to ease his sore lungs.

"I used to cough continuously," he writes, "and felt sore in the upper part of my lungs. I could not sleep, as the cough was so annoying and painful. I lost my appetite, felt tired all the time, and didn't have any pep at all. At the suggestion of one of my friends, I tried Arvo and felt relieved almost instantly. My coughing has stopped almost entirely, the soreness in my lungs is gone, I eat and sleep as I should and my nerves feel much stronger."

Arvo is a real remedy, compounded of herbs with known medicinal value. It can be taken with equally good results by old and young alike. Try a bottle and feel "different."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.—Revelations, III, 21, 22.

TEACHING JOURNALISM

Editors used commonly to say that newspaper work could not be taught in schools, that the aspirant simply had to start in on some newspaper as a reporter or otherwise. Today many colleges and schools have journalism courses. This branch of study has become important enough so that its teachers have a national association which has just met at Boston.

M. V. Atwood, associate editor of the Gannett newspapers, told the delegates that they had inspired men and given them an ideal of newspaper work. Many successful newspaper men got their start in such courses. But it is not an easy thing to make such study thoroughly practical.

A young man can work and work at books, but when he is sent out with a note book and pencil stub to get a story out of hard-boiled citizens and track down and weigh elusive rumors, he finds himself up against something wholly different. But such a course can polish off many of the cub reporter's rough edges.

PRACTICAL SCIENCE

Few of us realize how every day we get some benefit from modern science. We may think those scientists are dusty theorists who spend their lives grubbing out deep questions as remote from daily life as the stars of the Milky Way. But actually they are working on the problems that bother every wage-earner and housewife.

For instance, what do you suppose they talked about at the annual meeting of the American Association of Bacteriologists? Well, two of the subjects they chewed over were how to make bigger and better holes in Swiss cheese, and how to avoid rosy milk. No, it is the scientists who smooth out the wrinkles of life and work, and we must be generous in training men and women for this most useful calling.

STRAIN OF MODERN LIFE

Life goes too fast today, say our philosophers. They point to comparatively young men who show signs of age. They think the American people throw themselves into modern competition too furiously.

This complaint may apply to some folks who want to get rich quick, and can't wait for time to ripen their mellow fruit. The big cities, where the drive is fiercest, show many of this type.

For the masses, life should have less strain than formerly. Hours of labor are shorter. There are speeding up systems in many factories, mechanical processes creating unvaried monotony. If a man's nature rebels against this repetition, strain is created. Many phlegmatic people are not troubled by it. They rather enjoy something that can be done mechanically, while their minds travel to other scenes. For the past year, some men have worried themselves almost sick for lack of employment, but that is a passing phase which will not last.

Many a man used to sit on his front porch on summer evenings, and dreamily listen to the birds sing, while he watched the dog and the cat and gossiped with the neighbors. He obtained real rest. Quite likely that fellow has a car now, and is burning up the road evenings. The activity brightens him up, but it is not precisely rest.

Many lively folks spend most of their evenings in dancing, show going, card playing, etc. Very few hours of quiet rest for them. Modern activities keep people awake, but they need more hours of peaceful tranquility. People show strain, the lack of quiet rest is the trouble quite as often as over-work.

Somebody has decided that the average school child uses about eight hundred words in talking. But how much some of them can say with those eight hundred.

What Signor Mussolini said over the radio hookup deepens the impression that his belligerent talk in times past was chiefly for home consumption.

The Chicago News asks, "What worthy man can be elected mayor?" Probably any worthy man on whom all the worthy people of Chicago will unite.

ALL of US

—By— MARSHALL MASLIN

ARE YOU HIGH-HATING YOURSELF?

There you go, wearing a High Hat. There you go, thinking nobody can see it.

You deny it holy, with a hurt look. You say you're not wearing a High Hat. You never snubbed anybody in your life. You never passed up an old friend. You've always been friendly and sociable and one of the fellows. Nobody can say you've even been a snob. And you can't stand people who wear a High Hat through life. They give you a pain.

Yes, I know. That's right. You don't High Hat other people, that's true. But I know you better than other people you know. I'm quite sure of that. . . . And I tell you that you're wearing a High Hat. You've been snubbing Yourself. You've been snob about your own dreams and desires. You've been High Hating YOU, and that's the worst of all High Hating.

You know what I mean. Don't say you don't. You wanted to be one kind of fellow—and you're another. You wanted, perhaps, to be a teacher and live a quiet and reflective life, earning little but living largely. But you're not a teacher, because you High Hatted that ambition and became a businessman instead. It's all right for other people to be businessmen—they fit into it better than you do—but you are miserable and you know it. . . . You never wanted more than two or three friends—and you could have had those few, if you had really wanted them. But no, you decided you had to have a "wide acquaintanceship," so you buzz around say hello to a thousand men and women. And your heart is hollow because you High Hatted your deeply friendly self.

All your life, it seems, you've been wanting to do something—something you ought to do—and then sacrificing it for something cheaper and more glittering. You've been High Hating yourself and you haven't known it. Or maybe you've known it and been ashamed to admit it.

How do I know these things about you? . . . Well, I know myself. And I know how often I've done things I didn't want to do just because I wasn't brave enough to follow my own road. I've snubbed myself, high hatted me and pretended I wasn't doing it—and been sorry and disgusted afterwards. . . . So I can tell by the look in your eyes that you've been doing it, too. And if you wish to be friends with yourself again, just get rid of that High Hat. It's not too late.

When and where was Lawrence Tibbett born, and what schools did he attend?

Lawrence Tibbett was born in Bakersfield, Cal., Nov. 16, 1896. He attended high school for four years and Manual Arts Junior college for two years. He studied voice under Joseph Dupuy and Basil Ruysdale in Los Angeles and Frank La Forge in New York City.

Wheat

Of the two, wheat and rice, which is consumed more and what are the approximate production figures?

Wheat is the most valuable of the cereal crops of the world and its consumption is far greater than that of rice. The approximate world production of wheat is 4,000,000,000 bushels annually; that of rice 100,000,000,000 pounds. Figuring pounds to the bushel, the total production of wheat is more than twice that of rice.

Ferber

What are some of the facts concerning the life of Edna Ferber, the novelist?

Edna Ferber was born at Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 15, 1887. She was educated in the public and high schools of Appleton, Wis., and became a reporter on the Appleton Daily Crescent at the age of 17. Later she was employed on the Milwaukee Journal and the Chicago Tribune. Some of her better-known novels are "Show Boat," "So Big," "Gigolo" and "Cimarron."

Salvation Army

When and by whom was the Salvation Army founded?

The Salvation Army, a religious and charitable organization, was founded in London, England, by William Booth in 1865 under the name of East London Mission, later changed to the Christian Mission. In 1878 the title of The Salvation Army was adopted and a worldwide crusade commenced. The work in the United States was founded in 1880 by one man and seven women.

Livingstone

When did David Livingstone, the famous missionary and explorer, die? Was he buried in Africa or was his body taken back to England?

David Livingstone, exhausted by continued hardship and privation, died on May 1, 1873, at the village of Tshitambo, a friendly African chief, on the shore of Lake Bangweilo. His native followers cut out his heart and buried it at the foot of the tree beneath whose branches he died, cutting a rough inscription on the trunk to mark the spot. In 1898 the British administrator for this district visited the spot and observed that the tree was rapidly decaying. He raised a subscription in England and procured a substantial stone monument which now marks the spot. The section of the tree bearing the inscription was cut out and is preserved in the rooms of the Royal Geographical Society in London. Livingstone's body was taken to England, and on April 18, 1874, was buried in Westminster Abbey.

Bo-Broadway

—By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE—

NEW YORK. — The police force of Tammany Town numbers 20,000 men and equipment, including over 600 motor vehicles as well as patrol boats and aeroplanes.

That's some development when you recall that back in 1654 the "Rattle Watch" as the cops were then called, comprised only six men. As the old place started to go to the devil it was found necessary to increase this number. The "Rattle Watch" was succeeded by the "Constable Watch," comprising 12 men.

Things kept on getting worse, however, and finally, in 1798 the foundation of the present force was laid with provision for 140 patrolmen. Each of the 140 was equipped with a leather hat and a 33-inch club, and was paid 87½ cents a night.

An interesting feature about the size of the present force—20,000 men—is that there are a corresponding number of speakies in the city. One speakie to each cop.

HOSPITALITY

The speakie, with its varied stabs at "hospitality," is the one place left where man may carry on the endless arguments that the White Ribbon Girls, out on a moral spree, interrupted when they tarred the public houses—arguments that dealt with life and love and the provess of Jack Dempsey and "Them" Langford—the genius of Connie Mack—the glory that was Greece, the grandeur that was Rome—the strength and the weakness of the Home Team—what Congress ought to do—Now I'll tell you about this fellow Hoover—

BALLAST OVERBOARD!

GOLD SHORTAGE SEEN DURING NEXT DECADE WITH NO NEW FIELDS

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. — With the lion's share of the world's gold in Uncle Sam's treasury vaults in Washington, a gold shortage may seem like a paradoxical thing for economists to suggest as one of the causes of the business depression.

Nevertheless, some of them do suggest it. Of course, in doing so, they mean an international shortage—not a shortage in this country or in France, which, like America, has, if anything, a surplus of the precious metal.

France, to be sure, does not appear to suffer from its plethora, if it be one, but, instead, tolerably prosperous in the midst of other people's period of adversity. As for the United States, assuming that too much of this particular good thing really amounts to a handicap, it is only rather indirectly so, in the opinion of Chairman Peter Norbeck of the senate committee on banking and currency.

"It doubtless follows," he agrees, "from the fact that we have more gold than we need, that our neighbors have too little, and their embarrassment may react on us, to our own disadvantage."

It is more, however, of the future than of the present that the South Dakota solon speaks with serious anxiety.

And right here let me say that Senator Norbeck emphatically is not an advertiser of himself as a financial expert. As an authority on banking and currency, despite his chairmanship, he often has assured me that he is the ablest well-dressed man in congress. Personally I find him more informative than the leading fiscal specialists. The latter are too profoundly learned for me, at least, to comprehend fully. The South Dakotan employs monetary terms of precisely my mental capacity; one syllable.

(The truth is, he is extraordinarily well posted.)

"Few folk need any reminder," observed Senator Norbeck, "that war brought a tremendous increase in production costs. The manufacturer passed his increase on to the consumer and was none the worse off. The railroads, the rest of the utilities and the entire tribe of middlemen did likewise and broke even, or better."

"The farmer couldn't imitate them, and was hard hit. The miner was similarly situated; his, too, is a basic industry. Among miners is the gold miner. The value of his product is not absolutely fixed, to be sure. Gold fluctuates. It will buy, varying, less or more. Still, like farm products, it has an equal elasticity with ordinary merchandise."

"While the miner was digging gold at, say, a 20 per cent profit," continued the senator, "he took what he found, as he uncovered it. When he was abruptly cut down to no profit at all, or a loss, if he stuck to this method, he had to modify it or quit mining."

"He modified it. Every mine has comparatively rich seams. The gold miner concentrated on these and left the lower grade ore."

"Today these richer deposits are nearly exhausted. Mining pays better now, for the purchasing power of gold has risen lately, but the richest pockets are mostly gone. With the disappearance of the last of them there will be a heavy falling off in the world's gold output."

Next: "Thinks More Than He Tells."

importance have been discovered in a generation."

Are capitalists aware of this? Senator Norbeck happens to be exceptionally informed. The Black Hills area, in his home state, is a great gold-producing region, and the senator, in connection with his calling as a well driller, is familiar with mining.

But has the average capitalist his technical knowledge? Probably not; yet the capitalist evidently senses a gold shortage—not yet attributed by him to a shrinking gold output, for thus far, according to the senator, there has been little shrinkage; attributed by him, instead, and, for the present correctly, to the vast growth of business, requiring an ampler circulating medium.

At all events, a grave complaint of the day is that gold automatically is increasing in value in other words, prices of the things it will buy are decreasing faster than its owners can make money on it, invested in any commercial or industrial activity. Hence it best pays them to keep it locked up, doing nothing but enhance itself. Naturally this is bad for trade, since it means insufficient cash to conduct transactions, engage in enterprises and pay workmen.

Economists argue to the above effect, anyway. They foresee relief when gold has reached the maximum point which its hoarders consider it likely to attain by the unaided process of automatic accretion. Then, the theorists predict, its owners will begin to produce it from their strong boxes and put it back into circulation, to make it multiply itself.

"Ah," answers Senator Norbeck, "but about that time the fresh output will begin appreciably to dwindle."

"Within 10 years, unless rich new fields are found meanwhile, the world will feel the pinch sharply and a serious state of affairs will ensue—if the nations remain on a gold standard."

"And I admit I have no satisfactory substitute standard to suggest."

In which respect the senator differs from the bi-metalists of yore, who most decidedly had a substitute to suggest. As for the South Dakotan, his simply to diagnose; let others prescribe the remedy.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

—By MRS. MARY MORTON—

Molded Celery Salad—Three tablespoons gelatin, one and one-half cup cold water, two and one-fourth cups boiling water, one-half cup weak vinegar, three-fourths cup sugar, two teaspoons prepared horseradish, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one and one-fourth cups finely-cut celery. Soak gelatin in cold water, dissolve in boiling water, add vinegar, sugar, salt and horseradish. Color one-half cup red when pretty cool (this may be omitted). When gelatin begins to thicken add celery and put into molds. When serving it you can place a red one at every other place and alternate with the green, or put it in very small molds and place a red and green mold on a lettuce leaf for each salad. Serve with mayonnaise.

Suggestions

Buy in Quantity. It is much more convenient to buy pins in half-pound boxes than in paper packages; they are always ready at hand.

Bread Crullers

A loaf of bread can be cut in rings, dipped in egg, sugar and spice and everything nice, and fried in deep fat to make as nice crullers as you ever ate.

WONDER SALAD

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—One large can sliced pineapples, four cups colored marshmallows, one cup seeded white grapes, one cup whipping cream, one bottle red cherries, one cup diced cheese, one pint bottled dressing, crisp lettuce. Open can of pineapple and place fruit where it will drain thoroughly of all juice. Cut into medium-sized dice. If the marshmallows are large, cut them in two pieces. Wash and dry one cup Malaga grapes and remove seeds. Put these to drain. Open one bottle of red marachino cherries and drain free of juice. Dice finely one cup of rather firm cheese. Combine lightly, pineapple, grapes, cherries, marshmallows and diced cheese in mixing bowl and add dressing to which the cup of whipped cream has been added. The whipped cream should have a pinch of salt and two tablespoons of confectioner's sugar added before combining with the dressing. Stir this lightly through the pineapple mixture and serve on crisp lettuce leaves. Garnish the cubes of bright red and bright green jelly.

Watch Diet If Body Lacks Tone

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"The atonic type of indigestion," I fear, gives entirely the wrong impression. But it cannot be corrected in a short time.

The atonic type is not a stomach, but a human being. And anyone who starts out to treat the stomach and bowels, and forgets the whole man or the whole woman is doomed to failure.

Atonic means without tone—no resiliency. No comeback to the events of living. Relaxed—the stomach hangs down, either actually or figuratively, the bowels hang down. They have gas. They are bloated. They are afraid to eat. They have no appetite. They need sympathy. A medical friend of mine recently wrote a paper called, "A Country Doctor Looks at the Stomach." One class of dyspeptics he classified as "All-much Hungers." These people who want to be supported without work and who cannot endure the friction of human contacts.

Obviously diet alone is not capable of curing them. Sleep and rest are certainly more important than diet. If the diet, however, is rendered as little irritating as possible it will help. Many of these people are on roughage and bulky foods which their limited digestion cannot assimilate and which blows them up with gas.

Such a diet is that proposed by Dr. Walter C. Alvarez and from whom I quote.

"This diet is based not only on practical experience but on a number of scientific principles. We have no ferment in the digestive tract which will dissolve cellulose; that is, the fibrous parts of vegetables and fruits. Most of this material is quite indigestible, and if we eat much of it we throw a heavy burden on the bowel. This fiber interferes with the digestion of starches and predisposes to flatulence."

"If there happen to be narrow or spasmodically contracted places in the bowel the fiber may cause clogging and back pressure. The ideal diet in such conditions is one which leaves only a small liquid residue which can trickle past the obstructions and in this way bring relief. This diet is indicated also when the bowel is irritable, overly active and overly responsive to every stimulus.

"If you are to give this diet a fair trial, eat no coarse foods with fiber, skins, seeds or gristle. Avoid salads with celery, cucumbers and pineapple, also many of the green vegetables, raisins, berries, jams full of seeds, nuts and many of the raw fruits. Beans, cabbage, onions, peppers, melons, cucumbers and peanuts are notoriously gassy."

"Avoid sugar in concentrated form and take no candy or other foods between meals. Hot cakes and waffles might not be bad if they were well chewed and not eaten with so much syrup. Fried foods are not bad if they are properly fried, that is, totally immersed in fat at the right temperature."

"Avoid eating when in a rush when very tired, or when mental upset. Family rows should be kept away from the table. Chewing gum may cause distress because it is swallowed with the saliva. Digestion is greatly helped by a good chewing surface. If there are gaps in your teeth have your dentist fill them with bridges. The taking of purgatives should be avoided, as they may cause flatulence and abdominal distress."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Three pamphlets and three articles by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each pamphlet and 2 cents in coin for each article, with a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O.

The pamphlets are: "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding" and "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes." The articles are: "Normal Diet," "Diet of the Expectant Mother" and "Tuberculosis."

Issues Warning Against Cynicism

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE—

The man or the girl with a "line" is the breaker of many a heart and the wrecker of many an innocent faith. They are the cynic makers of the world.

They are also the world's egotists, who must make each person with whom they come in contact believe that he or she is the Only One to feed their own vanity. The poor innocent victims seldom realize that the devoted manner, the honeyed words are bestowed upon everyone who will listen to them. They find that out later and lose a good deal of faith in human nature.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I have been going with a fellow for eight months off and on. Until recently we have been going together twice a week."

He seemed very serious and sincere. He never asked me not to go with other fellows, but he seemed very peeved when I did. He went with other girls and I never said anything against him doing so.

"Just recently he has not shown up and has not called me up. I think it is very queer because we did not quarrel. The last time we were together, this was three weeks ago. He met my best pal at a dance and took her home and had the nerve to tell her the same things he had told me, which I believed were true. I don't know if he had told the other girls he goes with the same things. He is 28 and I am 19. I think a lot of him. He has meant more to me than the other fellows I know."

"What do you think about a fellow like him?"

"I think that you have fallen, like all the rest of us, young and old, fall occasionally for the person with a 'line,' my dear. The young man doubtless liked you in a casual way until his wandering interest was

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a young man about 21 years of age. I had a girl friend and she was very nice looking."

I have gone with her for four years. I think there never was a girl like her."

"She told me she had another boy friend and she was going to keep company with him now. I am very much broken up over it, for we were engaged and I had my apartment pretty well furnished."

"If you have any advice as to how I could win her love back, I surely would appreciate it very much."

"Just R. W. O."

Don't give up hope, R. W. D. She may go with the other boy awhile and find she doesn't care for him as much as for you, and ask you to come back. Such things happen every day.

If she was weary of you, however, I suppose there is nothing for it but to put up with it and make the best of a bad business. Most men have to go through a few such experiences. The girl in the case always seems heartless, but I suppose she really isn't to blame for her change of feeling. And many girls lose their boy friends through the latter's change of feeling, you know.

Few Skins Are Immune

—By GLADYS GLAD—

To my knowledge, there is no such thing as a skin that is absolutely immune to all blemishes. Even those of us who take the best possible care of our complexions may be afflicted temporarily with some blotch or slight eruption on the face.

The germs that constantly attack the skin, through dust settling upon it, through improper cosmetics, may cause minor complexion troubles for the woman whose skin has been completely free of any blemish for years. A mild and temporary internal disorder may also cause a mildly and temporary unhealthy skin condition.

If you have almost always had a healthy skin, do not get panicky at the appearance of a slight eruption or blemish. And above all things, do not try any strenuous method of ridding yourself of it. If a pimple appears do not squeeze it. By doing so you break the skin and thus cause the formation of a scar. And when the wound has healed, a small, fine scar generally remains. If there is a small break in the skin do not remove the scab that forms again and again. Give the wound a chance to heal properly. Apply a light antiseptic. Watch carefully that the spot does not grow larger. If, after a few days, the skin condition does not show any improvement, go to a beauty specialist or physician and have it treated.

It is very dangerous to take the scabs off any slight break in the skin. Such a practice may finally result in cancer. And, at best, it may leave scars that either will never disappear or that will linger for months.

I have known many cases of acne and of much less serious skin conditions that have been prolonged and aggravated because the tiny scabs were torn off. In acne, especially, such treatment is exceedingly serious. For acne scars are most distressing.

It is far better to have some unsightly spot on the face for a few days or weeks than to have a permanently ruined complexion!

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Protruding Ears. M. A. J.: The plastic operation on your ear should be performed by an expert surgeon only. Prices vary. The peroxide bleach should be allowed to dry on the skin. A bit of cream should be applied afterwards.

Stature. Shorty: I would suggest that you go to a gymnastic school and take stretching and limbering exercises. Cod liver oil taken after meals daily will assist in increasing your weight. Massage your arms with warmed cocoa butter nightly.

Perspiration. Miss E. L. M.: An excellent solution for under-arm perspiration on your armpits should be performed by an expert surgeon only. Prices vary. The peroxide bleach should be allowed to dry on the skin. A bit of cream should be applied afterwards.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

In coming within 100 miles of the Brazilian penal island of Fernando Noronha, but there minor mishaps forced them down. Both were found shortly by Italian cruisers and the crews rescued. The planes were towed to the island for repair and later will resume flight to Natal.

The list of the dead given out by the government included the following:

Captain Luigi Boer, 29, pilot of the second plane, white squadron. Lieutenant Danilo Barbicini, 28, co-pilot and navigator.

Sergeant Felice Nensi, mechanic. Sergeant Major Ercole Imbassari, radio operator.

Sergeant Major Luigi Fois, mechanic of the third plane, red squadron.

The extremely heavy loads of gasoline needed by the machines to carry them across the south Atlantic were believed the cause of the mishaps, according to opinions in government circles here.

It was generally believed that General Balbo was not aware until informed at Natal of the tragedy that marred his feat at the very start, although naval vessels may have flashed this information to him enroute.

In recognition of his daring accomplishment in leading ten planes across the south Atlantic, King Victor Emmanuel forwarded to him a message of congratulation.

NATAL, Brazil, Jan. 8.—General Italo Balbo, Italian air minister, and the crews of the ten seaplanes which flew across the south Atlantic from Portuguese Guinea to Natal today attended ceremonies dedicating a monument to Carlos Del Prete, who with Arturo Ferrarin set a long-distance flying record in a flight from Italy to Natal some years ago.

The trans-Atlantic air squadron then placed a wreath on the monument to the Brazilian air pioneer Augusto Severo.

General Balbo intends to lead his squadron to Bahia, a distance of 625 miles, tomorrow.

The new uniform conforms with city police regulations. "Happy" has not discarded the old uniform entirely, but will appear in khaki occasionally, he reveals.

BYE-BYE BLUES!

No need to feel blue now, even if you are confined in the lock-up at Police Headquarters.

her chauffeur and Carpentier out of the machine near a park, and drove away.

The Chaplin car was found by police about three blocks from where Mrs. Chaplin, Carpentier and the chauffeur were left. There was no damage and the keys were in the lock.

It was only with the greatest difficulty that the police were able to get Mrs. Chaplin to relate the details of the robbery.

Carpentier himself, when it was suggested that he might have succeeded in overawing his captors by reason of his reputation as a fighter, shook his head.

"Not with a couple of guns pointed at his stomach," one of the detectives handling the case declared.

Carpentier said nothing.

Whether Carpentier was robbed was not made clear. First it was reported $30 was taken from him and that this was returned. Later police said they understood no effort was made to rob Carpentier.

ATTENTION

Merchants and all consumers of Electricity

DO YOU want the lowest electric rates that can be obtained?

If you do, then we feel that you will agree with us that the City Commission should give every individual or corporation that desires to do so, the right to bid for the new electric franchise. U. S. Government, State of Ohio, public institutions and private corporations all recognize the fact that the best terms are always secured by competitive bids.

Despite the fact that the D. P. & L. Co. stated publicly that it could not and would not grant lower rates than those in effect last year, it has, in the face of competition, reduced those rates.

If we are granted the right to bid by City Commission we hereby guarantee that our bid will offer rates lower than any as yet suggested by the D. P. & L. Co. and we will if granted the franchise enter into any bond required by the City Commission for faithful performance of our contract.

The Theater

The news columns report many interesting and some sad, incidents.

Ethel Grey Terry, for twenty years a leading actress of the stage and screen, has passed away.

Josephine Dunn, pretty screen colony to go "on location." Leopold brought the suit on the allegations that his brother had prevented him from getting work in Hollywood and quoted Victor as saying there was room for but one McLaglen in Hollywood. "I have not seen Leo in nine years," Victor said, "and I did not know he was here until I read of the suit. I will defend myself if it proves necessary." A nice brotherly act. Victor is more brotherly with Edmund Lowe in their screen roles.

Alma Rubens, beautiful screen star, arrested again on a narcotic charge and later released on bond.

Victor McLaglen, noted film actor, has been sued for $100,000 for slander by his brother, Captain Leopold McLaglen, actor and director of British cinema productions.

Josephine Dunn is a native of New York City, is a blonde with blue eyes, was educated in Holy Cross convent and has been on the stage since she was 14.

She was with Ziegfeld and Dillingham in New York and she was one of the first Paramount Junior stars and appeared in their picture, "Fascinating Youth." Her screen experience includes roles in "Love's Greatest Mistake," "Fireman Save My Child," "Swim, Girl, Swim" and "She's a Shiek" for Paramount and in "Excess Baggage," "A Man's Man," "All at Sea" and others for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Her picture decorates the column today.

Alma Rubens, the fetching brunette stage and screen player who was found to be a drug addict a year ago, is apparently again in the toils of narcotics.

Although pronounced cured after a long period in a California sanitarium, police raiders found a large quantity of narcotics in her hotel room. She claimed she was "framed" by a maid and was released on bond.

Victor McLaglen had little to say regarding his brother's slander action just before leaving the film

KEDROFF QUARTET APPEARS JANUARY 30 IN COLUMBUS

There are few stories in the artistic world today that outlive the true tragic background of the famous Kedroff Quartet, the distinguished ensemble of Russian Singers, which will appear in Memorial Hall at Columbus Friday evening, January 30, under auspices of Barbizon Concert Series.

"Art saved my life," said Professor N. Kedroff, the founder of the group, in relating some of his experiences during the Russian revolution. "I was arrested for reading a poem in opposition to the Bolshevik movement at a meeting of the revolutionists. When I was on trial they asked me if I had read the poem. 'Of course,' I answered emphatically. They requested that I repeat the poem for them. I did and so absorbed did they become in my dramatic rendition of the poem that they released me instantly.

"Had it not been for my students bringing me food during the two winters I was awaiting permission to leave Soviet Russia," continued Professor Kedroff, "I would have starved to death. In the mornings our home was so cold that I had to break the ice in the basin before I could wash my face. Then finally permission to leave the country for six months came to the quartet members, but we all firmly believe in the future of our country. There is a vast wealth of talent in Russia and it will find expression.

The memorial concert of January 30, marks the second appearance of the Kedroffs in Columbus reappearing this season by popular demand.

Critics decreed their concert of 1929 to have been one of the greatest of the past Columbus season. It will be the last Kedroff appearance in America until 1933. All mail orders are now being received at Heaton's Music Store, 33 East Long St.

HER'S THE FIRST ?

Mrs. Dudley Field Malone, above, wife of the noted divorce lawyer, of Paris and New York, is progressing nicely, following the birth of a ten-pound son in New York at the stroke of the New Year. The Malones believe the child was the first born in the United States in 1931.

ANOTHER HOME TOWN BOY "MAKING GOOD"

Noble Sissle, a home-town boy who made good in the big city, came back home by radio Wednesday night to delight Xenians listening in on Station WLW, Cincinnati.

It is a long way from amateur night at the Bijou Theater to Civic in Paris and London, but that is the path negotiated by this talented colored boy in rising to fame and fortune.

His Les Ambassadeurs Orchestra, straight from Paris, drew a vast crowd to the Greystone dance hall, Cincinnati, Wednesday and listening Xenians decided his band was one of the best bands ever heard on the air. Sissle is a musician, dancer, singer, composer, playwright and director but seems to have attained the greatest heights in his present capacity as leader of his own orchestra. He supplements his baton by talking to his musicians as they play. Sissle spent part of his boyhood here. He is now making a brief tour of American cities before returning to Paris.

Blue Smackover Gasoline

The crude oils from which this famous Gasoline is refined contains a high natural content of the so-called aromatics naphthenes and unsaturates petroleum compounds which produces the desired anti-knock quality.
This unusual Gasoline combines in one motor fuel every desirable quality required by high compression motors and in addition contains the same quick starting and smooth operating characteristics that have popularized high test Gasoline. The great power found in Smackover accounts not only for its remarkable anti-knock performance but likewise is responsible for considerable higher mileage yields per gallon and yet this gasoline sells for only the regular price of 17c per gallon.
